JEROME IN A NEW ROLE.

Justice Flatly Refuses to "Take the Car Ahead."

HE MAKES ONE CHANGE.

Balks at Second Invitation and Insists on Having a Continuous Ride.

Justice Jerome struck out on a new line of reform this afternoon. On his way to the Criminal Court building to keep an appointment with Robert W. W. his private secretary, he boarded a cross-town horse car on Grand street. At Bowery and Broome street, the car stopped and the passengers were invited to "Take the car ahead."

The Justice did so, but he didn't seem pleased about it. When the second car reached Grand and Centre streets another invitation to take the car ahead was extended by the conductor.

The meek patrons scrambled out. Not so the doughty District-Attorney-elect, who had not much time for the street-car corporation presided over by William C. Whitney.

"I'll have to get out of here," shouted the conductor.

"I'll be damned if I do," retorted the Justice. "I paid my fare for a continuous ride and I am going to get it."

At last accounts the Justice was still riding around in the car, refusing to pay additional fare and insisting the car should cover the entire route indicated by the sign on the front platform.

"KIDNAPPED" GIRL FOUND.

Izola Hann Ran Away Because She Was Chided by Her Mother.

Thirteen-year-old Izola Hann, who ran away from her father's home on Staten Island last Sunday, was found today in the home of George Reeves, on Prospect street, Port Richmond, N. I. She had gone there of her own accord and asked to be taken in. Mrs. Reeves, who was once a friend of the Hann family, but had had a quarrel with Mrs. Hann, did so, and when there was danger of the child being discovered sent her to the home of Edward Smith, in West New Brighton, under an assumed name.

Trace of her was discovered there today, but she fled back to Mrs. Reeves before she could be apprehended. She is now in the custody of the Children's Society.

Smith and Andrew Pollock, who boards at the Reeves house, have been arrested and will be charged with abduction to-morrow when their cases will come up in the court at Stapleton.

Mrs. Reeves has not been arrested, but she has been summoned to appear in court to-morrow.

When Izola started for Sunday school last Sunday, she was angry with her mother because she had been chided for "talking out of school" to the Reeveses. She did not go to Sunday school, but last night went to Mrs. Reeves and asked to be taken in.

Mrs. Reeves says that she consented, so that the mother would not get her before her anger. She kept Izola until Monday night, when, fearing detection, she sent her with Pollock to Smith's. Last night Smith read in The Evening World about the Hann girl's disappearance. He asked his new neighbor, who was not Izola, and the child admitted that she was.

Smith became alarmed and went to see Mrs. Chambers, a neighbor of the Hanns. Mrs. Chambers refused to get mixed up in the affair.

Meanwhile, the West Brighton police learned of the new little girl at Smith's. A policeman went there this morning and tried to find Izola, but she saw him coming and escaped by the back way.

She went to Mrs. Reeves, where the police followed and got her before she could get away.

The father, who was then in Stapleton searching for the child, under the impression that she had been abducted by marked men, was sent for, and he got warrants out for the two men implicated and a summons for Mrs. Reeves.

Both the men are held in $1,000 bail, charged with being suspicious persons, but the charge will be changed to abduction to-morrow.

BRIDE FORGOT HIM IN FIRE OF ANARCHY.

Rushed Out, Then Recalled Husband Was Asleep in Blazing Tenement.

HEROISM OF A MOTHER.

Ran Five Blocks to Drug Store with Little Boy Abaze in Her Arms.

Two persons were burned, one probably fatally, and another rescued unconscious at a fire in the three-story brick tenement at No. 41 Hudson street this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kilburn lived on the top floor. They have been married but one month.

Mrs. John Farrell and her four-year-old son Jimmie, of No. 40 Hudson street, called on Mrs. Kilburn this afternoon.

While the women talked, Miss Jimmie wandered into the front room, found a match and set fire to himself and the room.

Mrs. Farrell heard his screams and rescued him, burning herself badly in tearing off his flaming clothes.

With Jimmie in her arms, Mrs. Farrell ran five blocks to a drug store, where she fell in a faint.

Mrs. Kilburn ran out screaming. Not until the firemen came did she remember that her husband was asleep in a back room.

Policeman Copeland and two firemen dashed through the fire and brought Kilburn to the street. He was unconscious but was revived.

The burned boy was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital.

VICTORY FOR THE EVENING WORLD.

Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company Forced to Restore Bay Ridge Train Service.

Another victory for The Evening World! Nearly one hundred of the residents of the West End, Bay Ridge and Fort Hamilton sections of the borough invaded the office of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, on Montague street, this morning and, calling upon General Manager J. C. Brackenridge, demanded the restoration of the former train service on the Fifth Avenue line between Thirty-sixth and Sixty-fifth streets, threatening that if their request was not complied with they would carry the matter to the courts and also ask the State Board of Railroad Commissioners to compel the railroad company to give them good service.

After wrangling for several hours, General Manager Brackenridge agreed to restore the old train service, for which The Evening World contended.

Miss Emilie Villoud, the beautiful young woman who disappeared from her home, No. 118 Summit avenue, Jersey City, and started her relatives by writing them that she had made up her mind to kill herself, was quietly married last night by the Rev. F. H. Hatter at the home of her lover, Albert Luden, No. 225 Summit avenue, West Hoboken.

Luden, as soon as he heard of this, started a hunt for his sweetheart in Manhattan. Even when Mrs. Villoud received a letter from her daughter announcing her intended suicide, the faithful lover did not despair.

He searched all over this city for several days and finally found the distracted girl in Central Park.

At the sight of her lover she brightened up at once. She seemed to awaken as from a dream. She had lodged in hotels at night and had wandered about aimlessly for days.

PREACHER ACCUSED OF THEFT.

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 5.—Wilmer Woodrow, the cashier of the South Jersey Gas, Electric and Traction

"Kid" Broad, the prize fighter, came rushing back to town this afternoon looking for the scalp of Young Corbett. Broad arrived on the steamship Deutschland.

His return is quite unexpected, as he went over to England only a month ago. His purpose was to fight Jack Roberts before the National Sporting Club of London, but there was a row and the match was declared off.

I Can Lick Him Easy.

Broad's sole idea in returning at this time is to get a chance at Corbett. As soon as he heard that McGovern had been defeated by the Westerner, he saw a chance to get money and glory by landing Corbett.

Corbett's only got one punch and that's his right hook. He tried to land it on me and he couldn't. I told Terry when he was matched to fight this fellow that he would have to look out for that, and if he kept away from it there would be no trouble ahead for him. But he didn't do it. I can do it, because I have done it.

My Cincinnati fight with him was only ten months ago. If Corbett has improved a lot since that, why I have, too. At 2 I want is a chance to show him that I can lick him.

Ready to Fight Now.

"I'm in good condition right now. I'm practically in training for. I have not let up much in my work since the fight with Roberts was declared off, and I could fight him within a week."

He ought to give me a chance before he gives McGovern another go, and I'll show him that he won't land that right of his on me. Terry is good, all right, but I gave him about all he could stand when he was in good shape. Too, I knocked him down twice in my fight with him at Chicago, and he only knocked me down once, but he got the decision."

Broad would not tell what caused the tragedy in that this city-boy was able to defend himself against five Southerners armed with revolvers and rifles, and Southerners bred in the country are usually supposed to be able to shoot.

Record of Destruction.

But young Marx was more than their match. He knocked them over one after another without missing a shot and without stopping to think of the consequences.

MARX, OF THE DEADLY AIM, STARTS ON HOMEWARD TRIP.

Young Brooklyn Lawyer, All Danger of Lynching Past, Leaves the Scene of His Slaying of Southern Whitecaps.

Herbert Marx, who killed one man instantly and wounded three others—one of whom has since died—in Westmoreland County, Va., Tuesday when they tried to tar and feather him, has taken a train for New York. He was met at Fredericksburg, Va., by his brother, Ernest Marx, and a brother-in-law, Abel D. Blackmar. There was no talk of lynching Marx, as it is generally thought he was justified in the shooting.

Blackmar, who is a member of the law firm of Baldwin & Blackmar, of No. 31 Nassau street, where the young man was a clerk, and Ernest Marx, Herbert's older brother, left this city last night for Fredericksburg on receipt of a telegram from Herbert saying that he was on his way to that place and would await the arrival of some member of his family at that point.

The Marx family live at No. 139 Sixth avenue, Brooklyn. The father is dead, but Ernest and William and three sisters, in addition to Herbert, live there with their mother.

Herbert is employed by the law firm of Baldwin & Blackmar, at No. 31 Nassau street. He was graduated from the New York Law School last June and is twenty-four years old.

One of the most striking features of the tragedy is that this city-boy was able to defend himself against five Southerners armed with revolvers and rifles, and Southerners bred in the country are usually supposed to be able to shoot.

County Treasurer and Two Colored Men Are Killed During a Row in Alabama.

A number of negro towns had been running about the town nearly all day, and last night in front of the store owned by Mr. Dorsey they became violent, made many threats and then left town in a body.

Fearing trouble during the night, the City Marshal, with several deputies, among them Mr. Marshall, followed the negroes, finding them near a turpentine camp.

When ordered to surrender by the marshal the negroes fired at him, the bullet lodging in Fayette Marshall's leg.

The posse returned the fire and the shooting was general for a few minutes. The negroes escaped, but the posse is after them. It is not known how many negroes were engaged in the shooting.

She yielded to his pleas at last and some days ago consented to be his wife. Their marriage is announced to take place within a month. Miss Glidden having returned to her old home to prepare for the wedding.
